Written communication

Ms Malahat

- Topic: Written Communication
- Introduction
- The written Communication refers to the process of conveying a message through the written symbols. In other words, any message exchanged between two or more persons that make use of written words is called written communication.
- The written communication is the most common and effective mode of business communication. In any organization, the electronic mails, memos, reports, documents, letters, journals, job descriptions, employee manuals, etc. are some of the commonly used forms of written communication. This method of communication is quite safe in public dealing (sale and purchase matters).
- Importance/merits/benefits/advantages of written communication

1) Permanency: Written communication is the safe way of communication. Once you write something on paper, so that thing is saved for future reference. All the important matters like job condition and confidential matters must be in a written form.

1) More effective than speech: as compare to oral message, written communication is easy to understand. Reader can study difficult message many times till he understands it

2) Clarity, Precision, and Accuracy: : In oral communication, there is a possibility that the voice of a person not heard properly or the language, which is used to deliver, is difficult to understand. These possibilities can be removed in written communication. Written messages are carefully formulated, reducing ambiguity.

3) Maintaining Image: Written communication helps the organization as well as the person to maintain its reputation and image in front of others. Effective written communication also can create goodwill in the organization and promote its business.

4) Composed in advance: it is the quality of written communication that you can prepare the lecture or message in advance. This thing is very helpful to remove the mistakes.

- Disadvantages/problems/ demerits of written communication

1) Time consuming: In written communication the factor of time consuming in term of prepare the message and to understand it.

2) Different Interpretation: In written communication, the reader understand the message according to his mental ability. Different persons interpret different words, in the results the meaning would be completely changes

3) Expensive: - One of the disadvantages of written communication is being costlier than other communications. For written communication, paper, pen, ink, typewriters, printing machines, and maintaining such equipment and machinery, a computer and a large number of employees are necessary for its execution. Also, it is expensive as a group of individuals to prepare and distribute the organization's letters which is quite costly for any organization.

1) 4) Delay in response and decision making: - If the recipient of the message lives far at a distance and has any doubt which is required to be clear, the response is not spontaneous as there is a lack of immediate response, which eventually leads to a delay in further decision making.

-